Take A Long Look

Throughout this year and especially during this significant stage in our social development, we have been faced with the apprehensive questions of identity, commitment, and our gregarious adaptation. We can attain answers to these challenges only through an intelligent comprehension of our society and a thorough, unbiased understanding of ourselves.

The family and Church function as social directives, but the evolution of our American culture has imposed the responsibility of education (and the preponderance of moral guidance) upon the schools. Since the school has this social stability we should utilize it to the fullest as a means for discovering our roles in life.

A contemporary definition of education is that it includes all the means in which a person tries to influence the behavior of another person. Behavior may include the acquisition of knowledge, intellectual discipline, education for citizenship, individual development, vocational training, and character education.

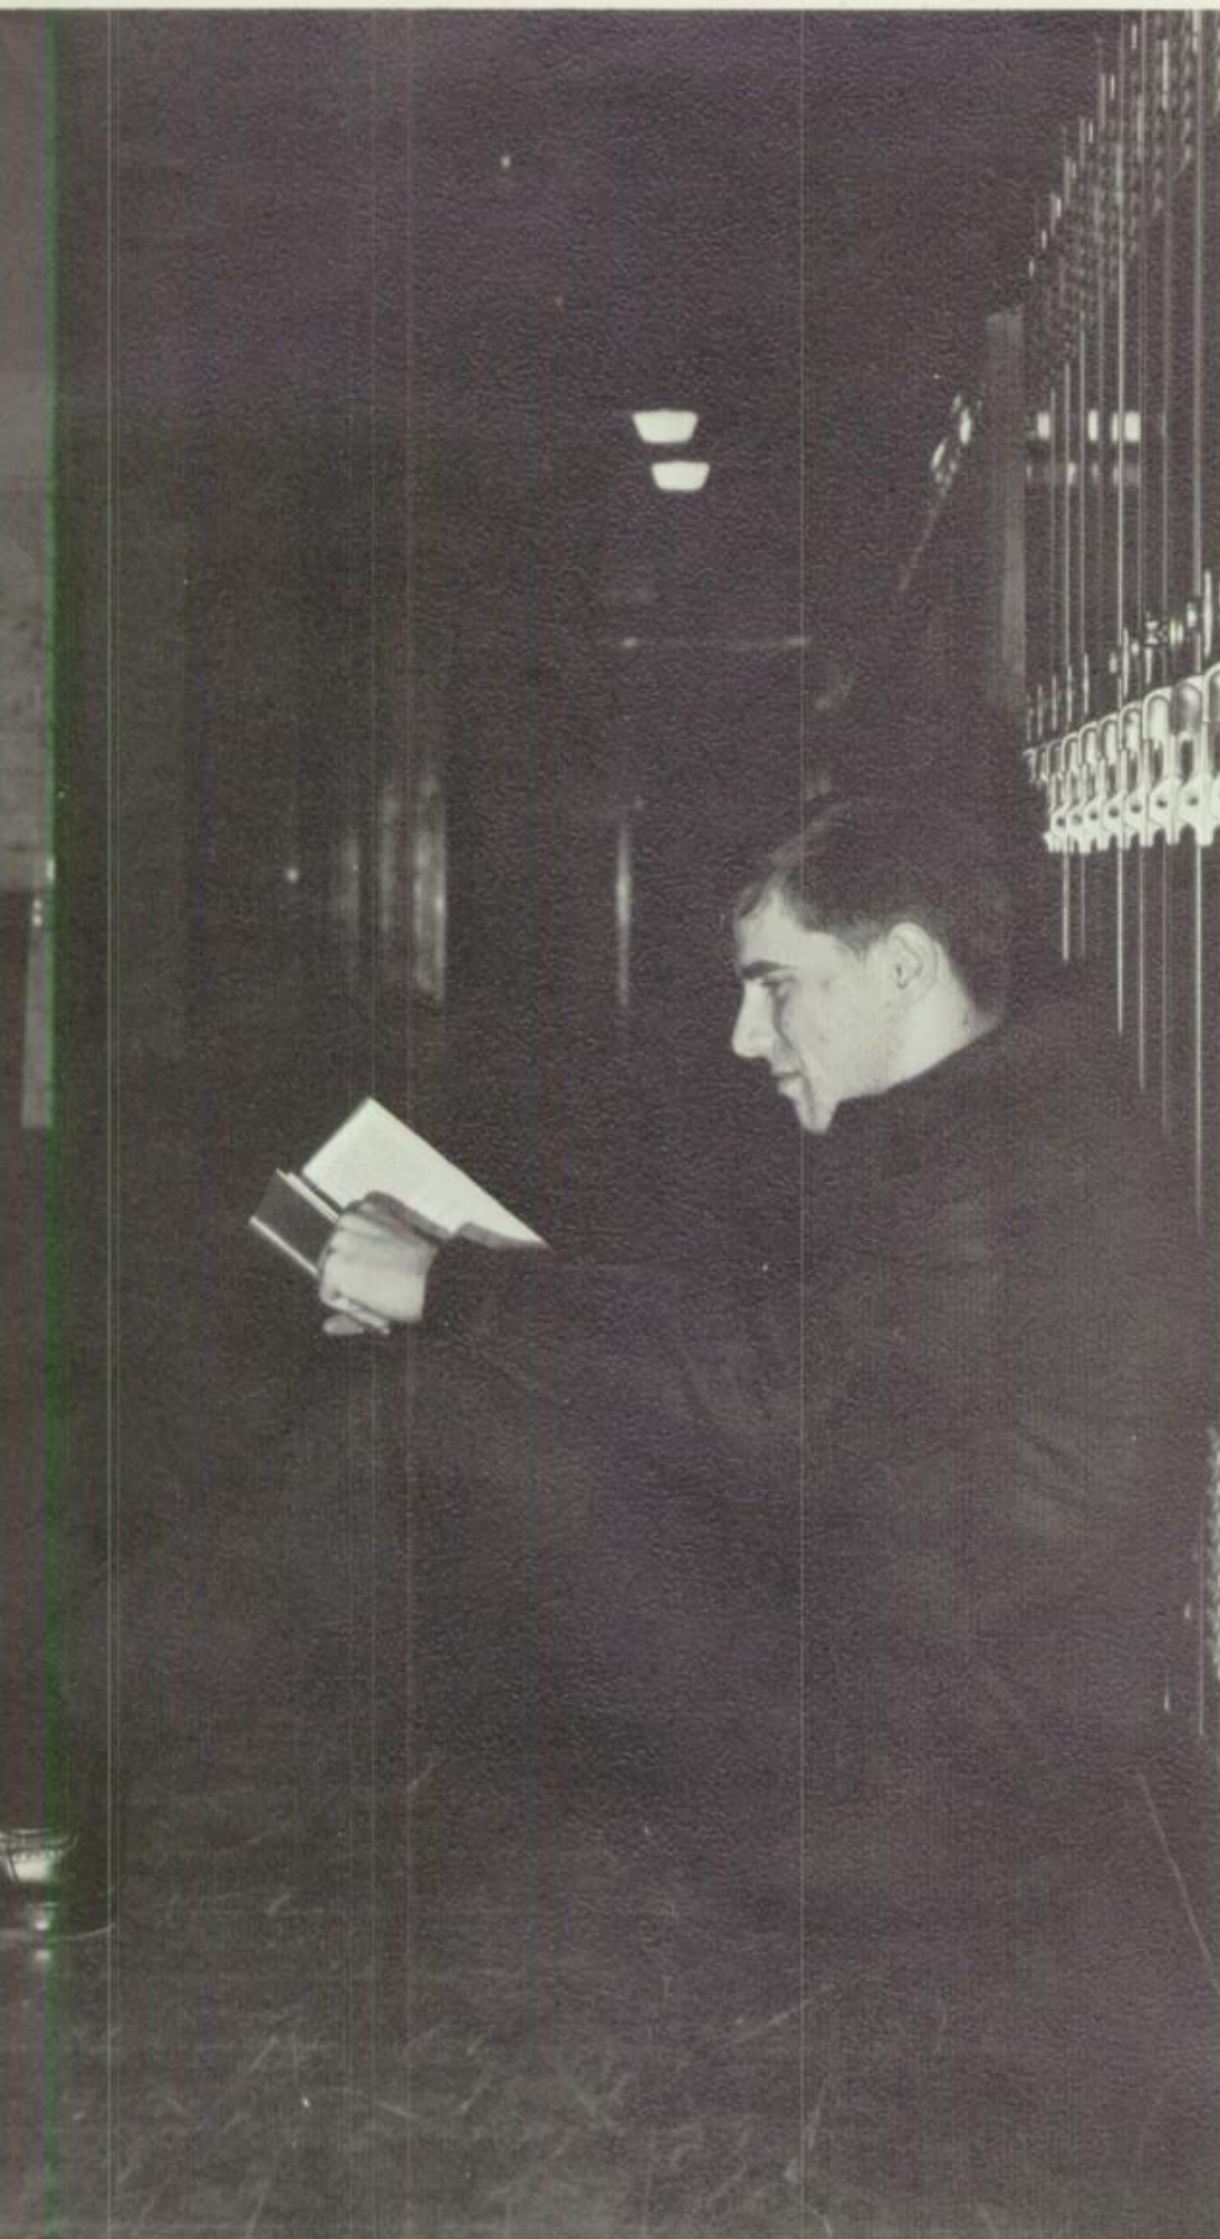

Helias High School is the source of its students' education. An education that must serve as a foundation upon which stands all future learning. As we examine the pages of this book, let us examine also the ways and means she uses to transmit a modern education in a modern world. We may be her judges because we are Helias.

Teachers spend many hours outside of their classrooms helping students with problems, or just discussing the latest newsy notes.

She may be in deep contemplation thinking about what life holds for her. May Helias help her to attain her far reaching goals.

Many times just being alone is the best way to learn about ourselves, others, and the world we live in.

Our first experience of learning is easy. We start out accepting all information as the absolute truth. Now that we are in high school we have a revolutionized task to accomplish. Where it once was our duty to accept certain facts without question, now we must delve into the information given us and try to decipher the truth.

As we become older the amount of data we receive greatly increases, but the amount of truth becomes proportionally less and camouflaged under the enticement of irrelevant and oftentimes fallacious information. If we are to achieve any success in life, we must be able to seek out the truth.

This acquisition of knowledge is begun very early in our lives through a various number of social groups. The primary group of learning is, of course, the family. However, in high school our world of learning becomes a secondary group, less protective and more impersonal.

We come in contact with students from a wide variety of backgrounds. In class we learn to communicate our own ideas and to understand theirs. It is through this exchange of ideas that we broaden ourselves by hearing new and different opinions. Life is not only our little world. We must reach out and learn.

Teachers also play a major part in this learning process. The classroom is their stage upon which they act to motivate and teach us.

Which Way Is Clear?

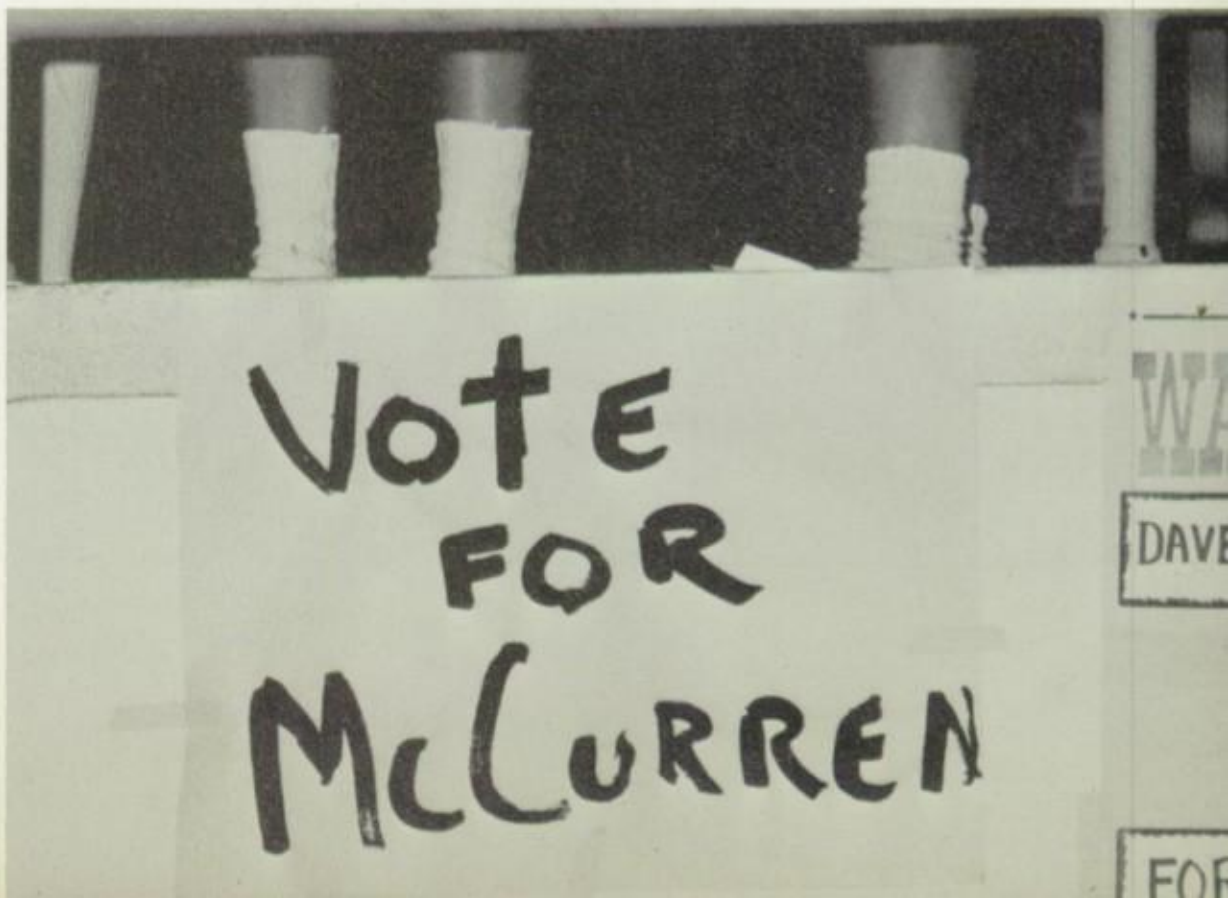

Without God man is nothing. He is not capable of performing a single action which has more than a mere earthly meaning. Therefore, the first obligation of man is to know, love and serve God. He can do this either as an individual or through an established religion. The Catholic Church is such an institution of religion founded by Christ to be the true faith. It is His living presence on earth.

Our parents have chosen to send us to Helias so that we may obtain an education with a Catholic point of view, and enlarge our knowledge and strengthen our belief in the Catholic faith. However, merely our attendance at Helias does not guarantee that these objectives will be realized in our own lives. The school does many things to enlarge and strengthen our faith by means of the Mass, religion classes, and the infusion of Catholic thought in all subjects. By the examples of the sisters, priests, and brothers, we see ways of serving God on earth. We try to apply Catholic ideals in the dealings we share with teachers and classmates. The fruitfulness of our education at Helias will be seen in our own lives. Each of us must make a personal commitment to the Catholic faith. We must show by our actions and thoughts that we are followers of Christ. That we are the Church. Nothing can ever be of more personal importance to a man than a belief in God and a life which is a testament to this belief.

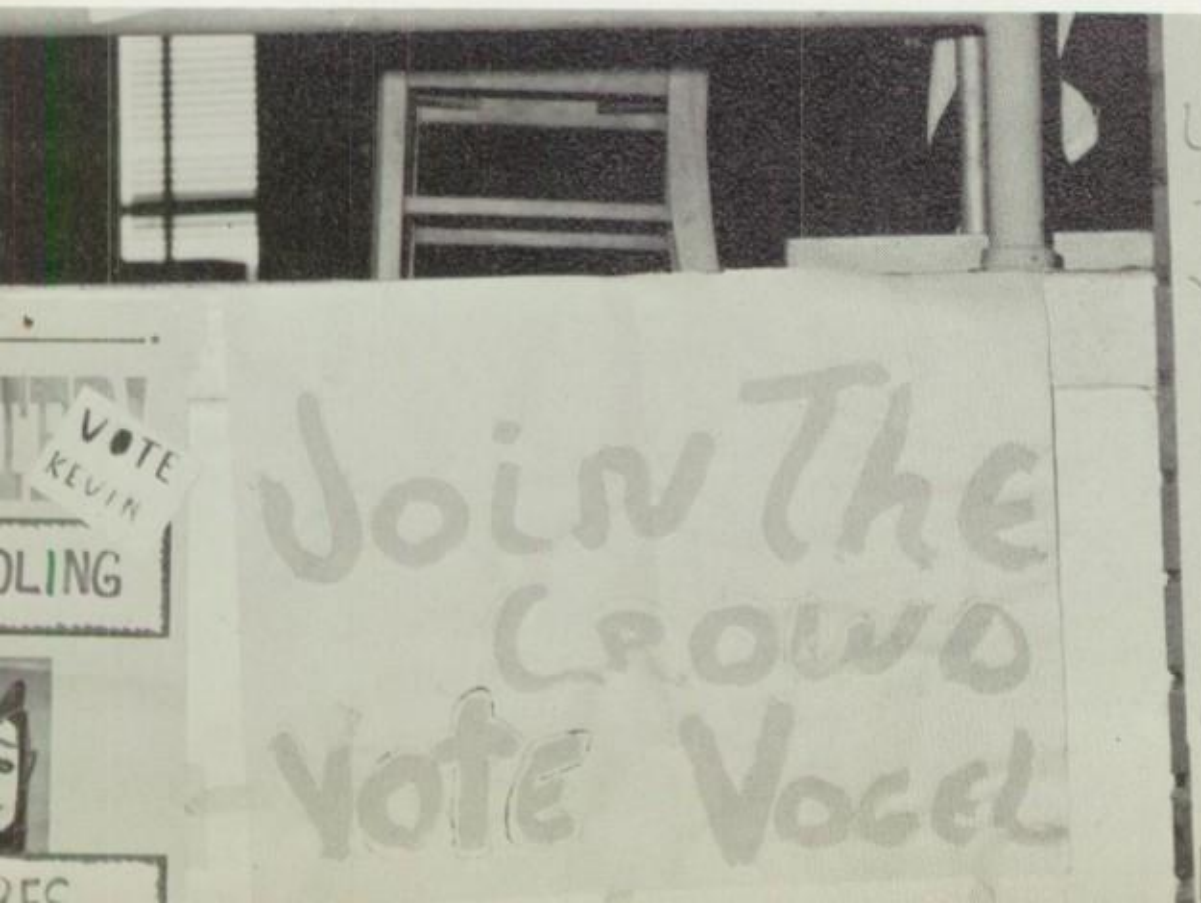

The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass is our personal meeting ground with Christ our Savior. It is here that He becomes a Friend.

Our first introduction into the world of politics is through the Student Council. It may be the governor's first office.

People like to find the easy way out of their problems. Draft card burning is a very easy way out.

Another obligation of our adolescent stage is the development of a concerned attitude toward politics. There is both a moral and a civil responsibility involved in this opining. As citizens of this country we have the duty and obligation to support good government and the equality of citizenship. But on the other hand, we have the responsibility of voicing our disagreements when our ideas differ from those of the established administration. The extremes of this disagreement will depend upon the situation; therefore, objective norms must be dictated. According to our convictions, we must decide if the standards are pertinent to our subjective situation. We must be careful in our decision to offset any rationalization on our part. The laws are broad enough to allow for most sentiments; and if we still disagree and find there is no legal grounds to achieve our objective, it is usually more pragmatic to either compromise or get out.

In school we learn the interesting and complicated mechanisms of the federal, state, and city governments. Only by becoming familiar with these systems, can we hope to be informed voters and perhaps, even leaders in our country.

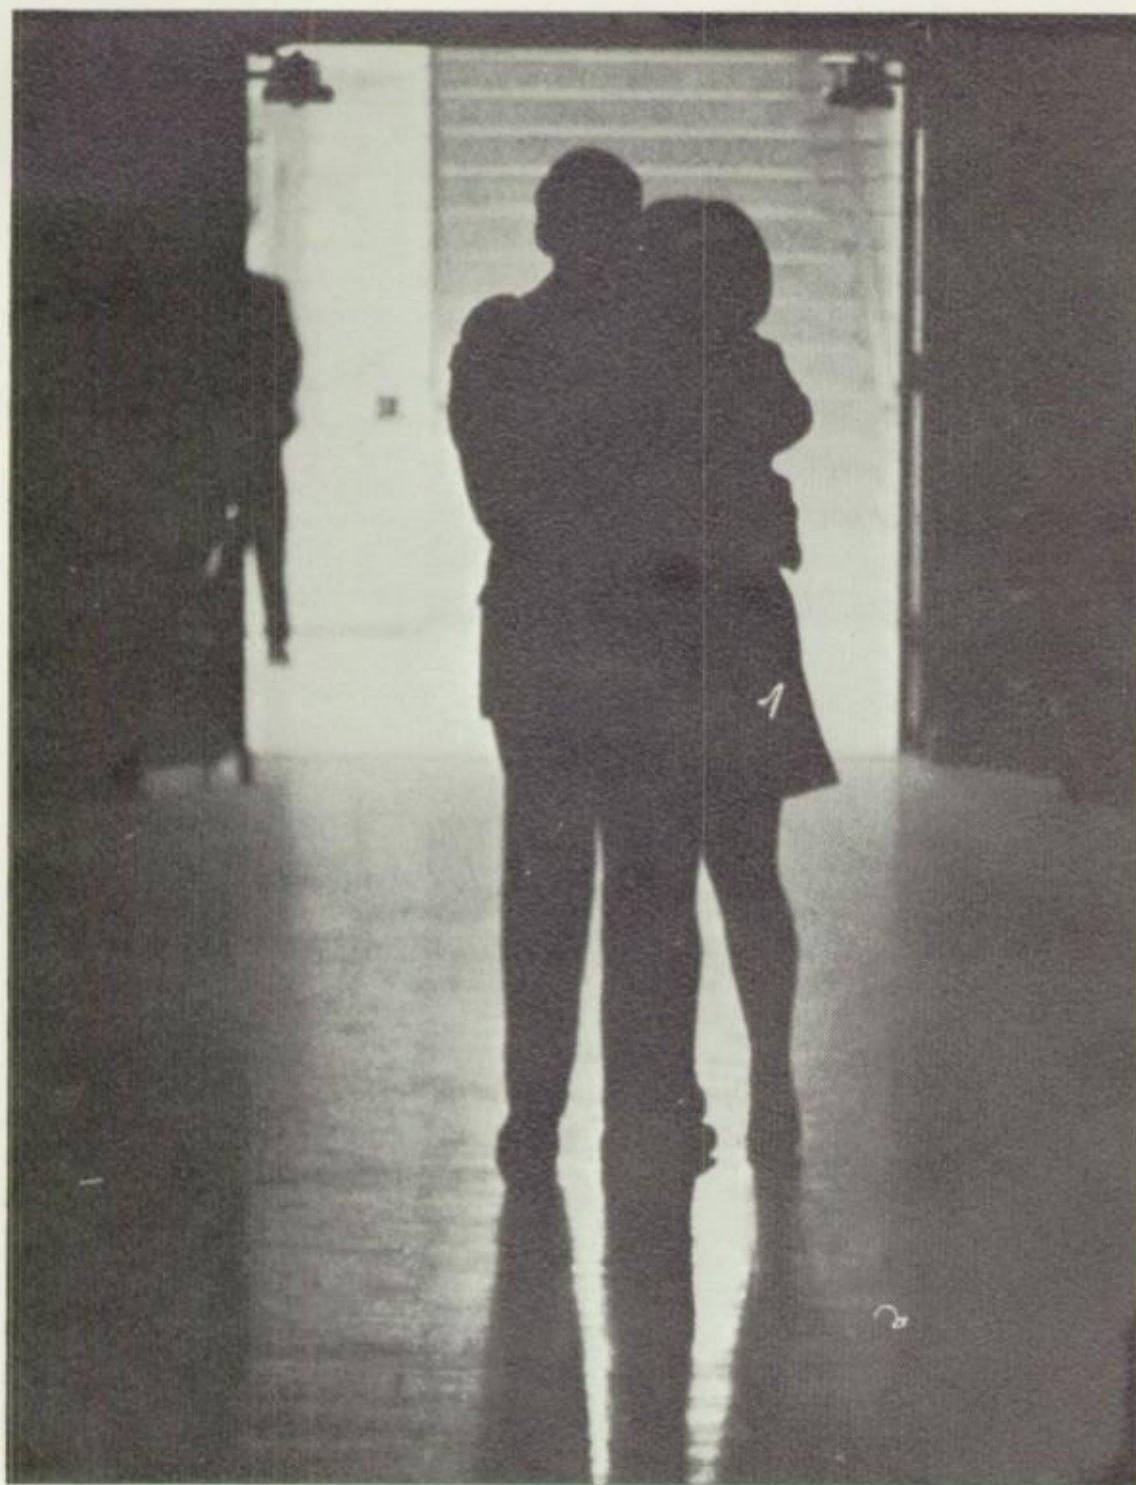

Also we are exposed to many people whose political opinions are different than our own. Now is the time to learn what is the best way of determining political beliefs.

What Will You Find?

Another crisis that we must face both now and in our future life is that of racial prejudice. Americans of all colors need a realistic perspective of our country's most serious domestic problem. We need to understand the magnitude and the grandeur of what it is that we Americans are trying to achieve: the first society in human history to establish a true equality of opportunity and mutuality of respect. The key to this American dream is through education. Education of the ethnic groups so they are capable of achieving a higher status in life; education of the whites in the equality and basic goodness of man; education of both in the love and respect that should exist between men. This is not an easy solution, but it can be attained with work and effort on everybody's part.

Each man is an individual who must learn to think, act and feel on his own. As adolescents, we are constantly striving to be ourselves, to do what we want to do, to say what we want to say, and to think what we want to think. A man can not become an individual alone. He becomes a man only by combining the knowledge and experience of other men with his own knowledge, experience and talents. The function of a school, therefore, is to create individuals by teaching them the heritage of men and help them to use their own talents.

Sharon Staggers has proven again and again that Helias is a school which offers equal opportunity to all students. She is both a leader in her class scholastically and by popular vote elected as a varsity cheerleader for the year 1968-1969. Helias is a place to attain a prejudiced free education.

Our heads are filled with nothing until we make the first move to become well educated. Only by work and study will we achieve the goals that each of us is capable of attaining. Helias offers the opportunities, but each individual must make his decision to accept or to reject them.

Two people meet and hopefully a friendship is formed. Only by knowing people as friends can we ever come to realization of ourselves. When we learn to love ourselves, and others, then we can learn to love God who is our greatest friend.

We have now discovered the purpose of Helias and of all educational institutions. It is to create individuals, to pass on the knowledge of mankind and combine it with each person individually.

Many of our problems are people to people problems, whether it be with the same or opposite sex. School is the proving ground for our social abilities. We come in contact with both adults and persons our own age in various types of situations. Many times there are personality conflicts. We must learn when to give in and when to hold our own. Jobs have to be done to please someone besides ourselves and their standards must be met. The world outside our homes is much more critical than complimentary. Social adjustment is all a part of learning about life.

In this introduction some areas of education at Helias have been pointed out: acquisition of knowledge, moral guidance, individual development, education for citizenship and the building of social skills. Many more areas than these are affected by our high school training, so many in fact that they could not be treated here. The purpose is that we realize the importance of Helias and then make full use of her educational system. It may or may not be the best, but it is all we have. Let us make a final commitment to obtain a high degree of educational achievement.

ACADEMICS

Education is their business their only business. This is an accurate description of the Helias faculty, a group of individuals each dedicated to give us something to last a lifetime. They certainly have a lot to give—years of education and training plus the experience of living. Giving in their own ways, using personal devices to arouse the attention and hold the interest of their young audiences. Day after day in an almost constant mood of cheerfulness, they urge us on to higher levels of learning. Drawing on their seemingly excess stores of patience and perseverance during times of classroom crisis.

Now we can only imagine the influence of their guidance and example upon our lives. Many a Helias graduate has stayed on the right path because of the example of a devoted teacher.

Classes are the places where a student fulfills the purpose of Helias which is to educate. The classes which we attend for four years are designed to give us a basis on which to build as we enter the world of business or the world of higher education. They should also arouse our curiosity to discover knowledge on our own. Classes and study help to develop certain qualities we need to become mature persons—self-control and determination. People emerge as leaders and as followers as personalities become molded by teachers and students.

Classes may vary greatly in the degree of enjoyment which they give, but all serve to benefit each of us in many countless unseen ways. Let us make the effort to find these ways . . .

ADMINISTRATION

Many A Day of

MR. JAMES RACKERS

In his first year as Assistant Principal, Mr. Rackers has proved to be an invaluable asset to the school. His personal influence has been enormous. Mr. Rackers' average day is entrusted with the difficult and often unpopular task of making decisions concerning the student's schedules and discipline problems. But in his spare time he busies himself making plans for a flexible schedule to be used in future years. Under his capable guidance, Helias continues to offer a superior education and promotes greater student activity to the increasing number of high school students in Jefferson City.

Decision

BROTHER WILLIAM RHODY

Two years ago our school received new blood with the acquisition of a dynamic principal, Brother William Rhody. The quality which makes him so dynamic is, above all, the impact of his very honest, very modern, well-integrated personality on the students. All phases of student life stem from his office. A steady stream of faculty, students, and visitors pouring into his office characterizes a normal day in his busy life. Brother William could be described as "the guy who has everything," but rather, he is an individual who meets and copes magnificently with an extremely complicated life as Co-Principal of Helias High School.

SISTER MARY LEA

Although this is her last year as Co-Principal, the untiring efforts of Sister Lea will continue to benefit the students of Helias for many years. Her administrative abilities have guided Helias through six years of growth. As Chairman of the Administration Committee for the North Central Inspection, Sister Lea dedicated many hours for the overwhelming approval Helias received by the North Central Committee. She commands respect, good will, and interest over her countless students and friends.

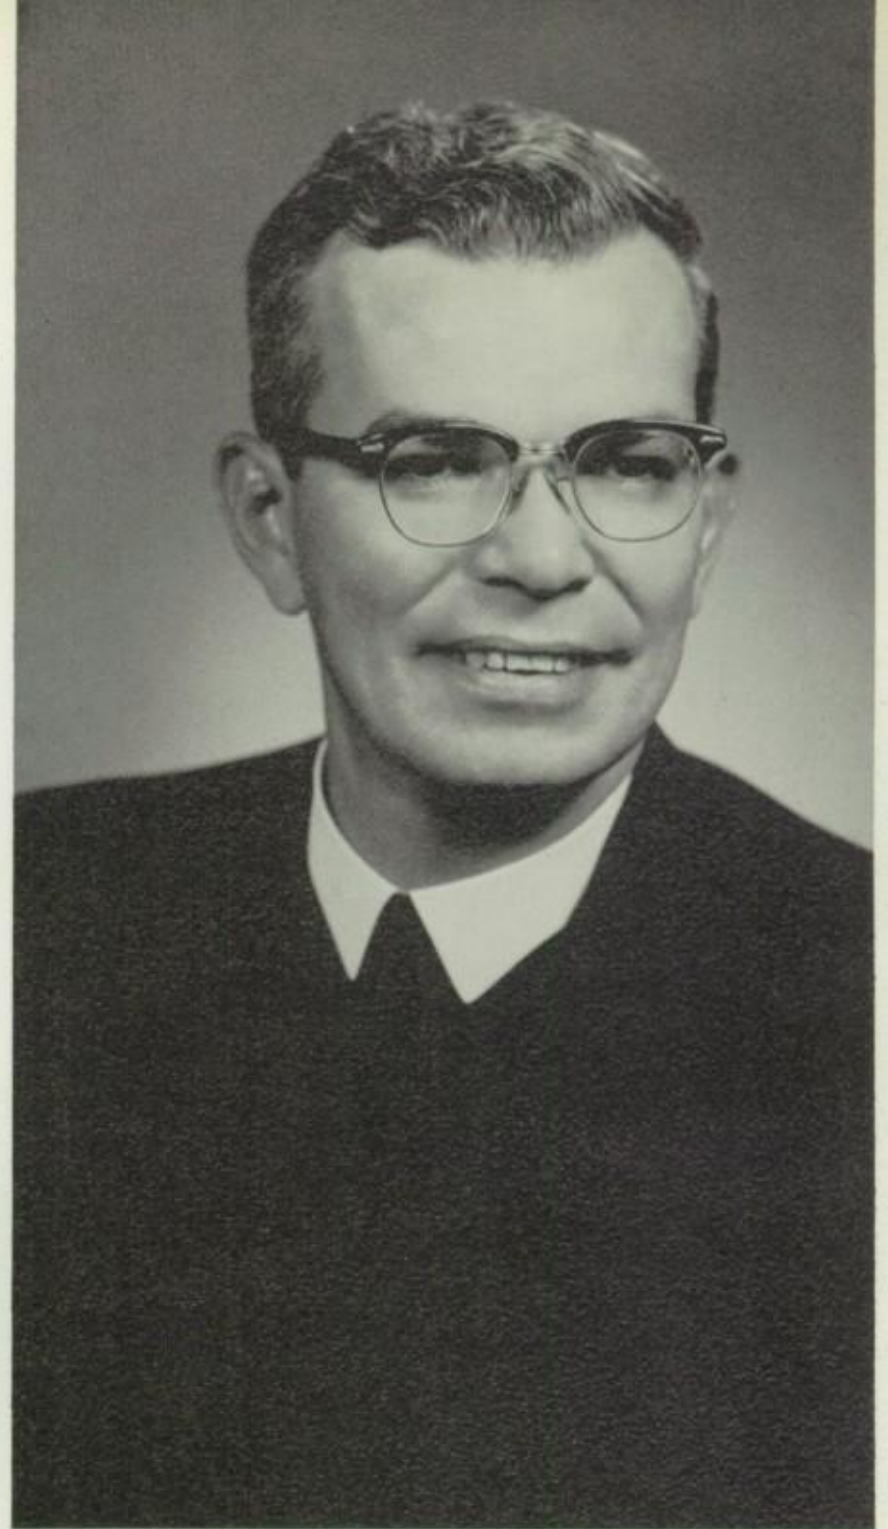

Brother James' 25th Anniversary

A great man was once defined as one who does the task at hand with all the energy and enthusiasm he possesses. Brother James easily fills this definition. True dedication motivates his desire to help others. His good nature and quest for excellence abound not only in class, but in all his activities. The students and faculty are very proud that Brother James is a part of Helias, and wish him a prosperous life.

A Tribute to Our First Lady

The quality that most characterizes our "First Lady", as Br. William affectionately refers to her, is her excellent relationships with people. Only casual acquaintances of sister might not think of her in this way. If one would ask the three co-principals, the faculty, or the students, they would all bear witness to her congeniality as a person, administrator, and co-worker.

Sister Lea just popped in for a quick inspection.

ENGLISH

Say It, And Say It Right

Communication was never more essential to life than today, when involvement in society and the other guy is becoming a principle of action. To understand and communicate with our fellow man through the knowledge of literature and speech are the undertakings of the Helias English Department.

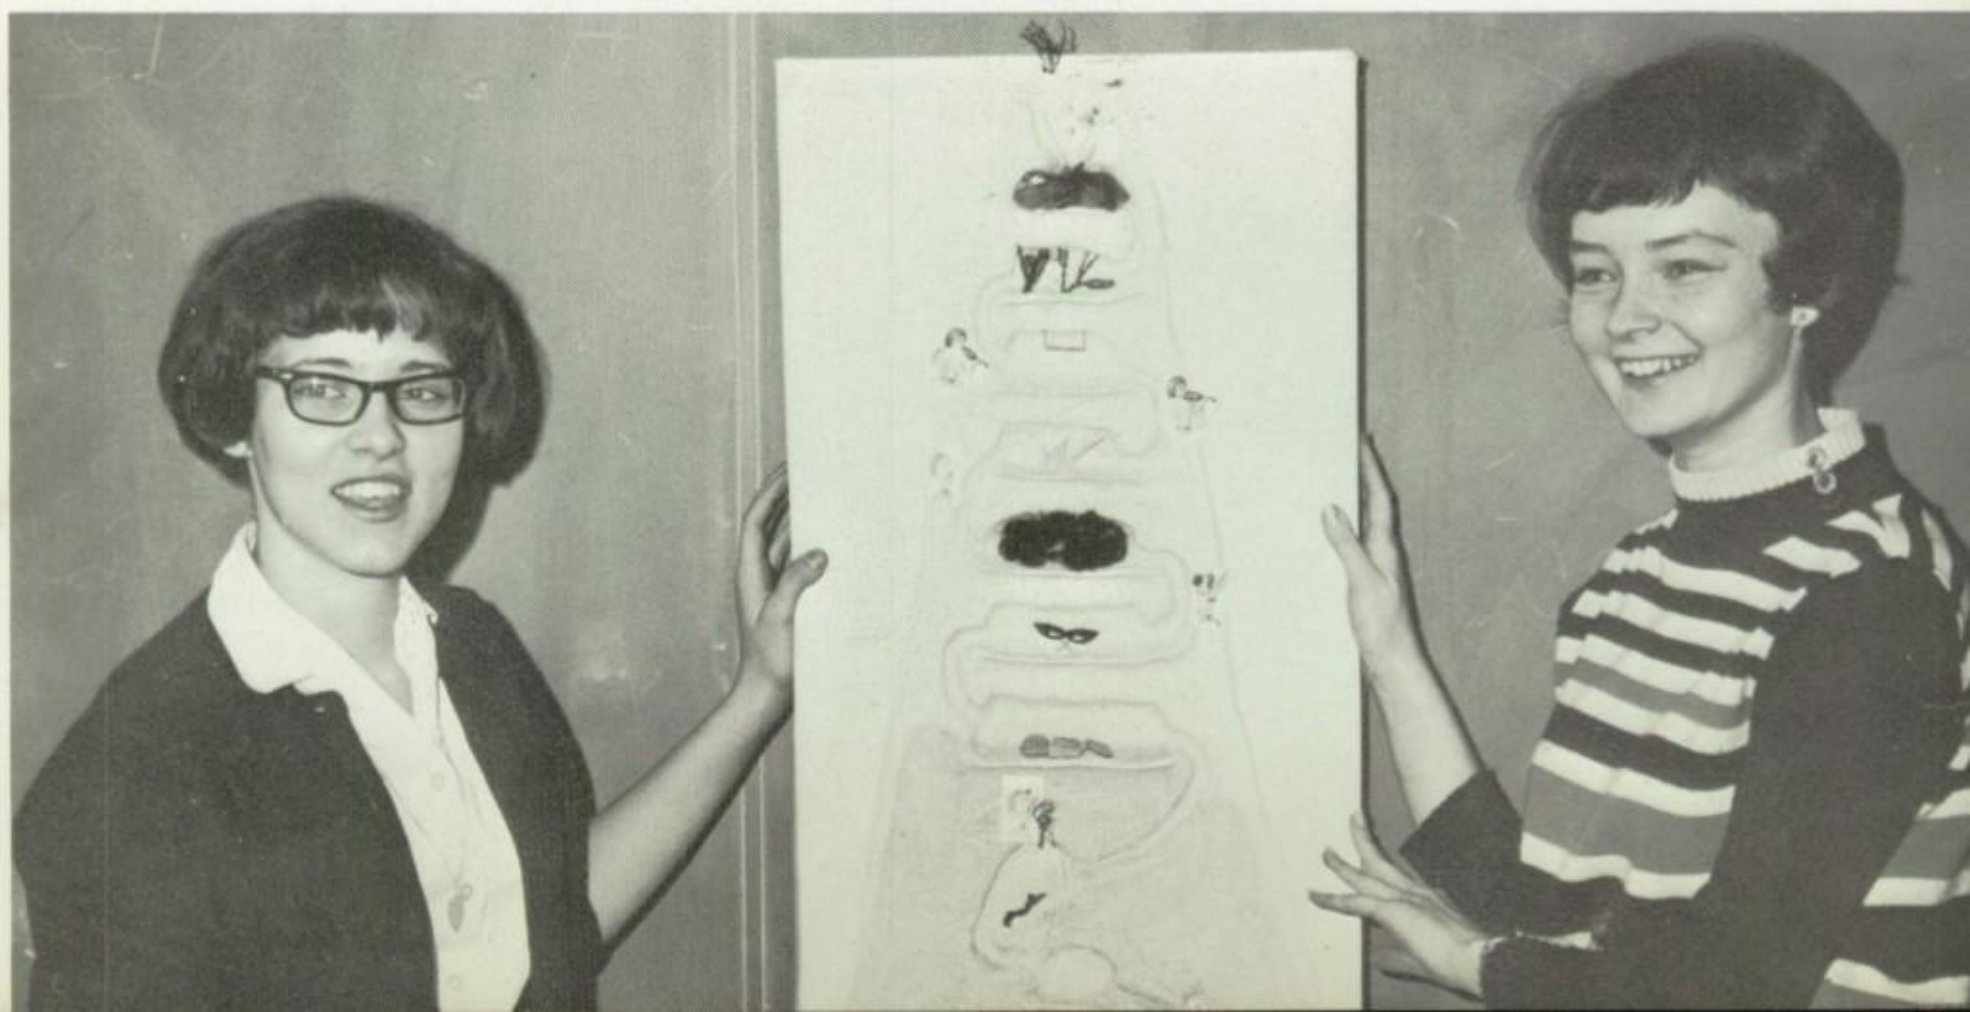

All students are required to study English for four years and, in addition, are offered, Speech, Drama, plus the benefits of fine movie and paperback book programs.

With all the emphasis on communication the English Department has also undertaken a one hour radio program on Saturday evenings. The program has been used to inform the public of Jefferson City of the activities of Helias.

LANGUAGE

Bonus Dies-Bonjour-Buenos Dies

The Language Department said, Hello to two new courses this year. Both the Spanish and French Departments felt the need for additional courses through which the students could advance their knowledge. So the schedules were extended to include a third year of the languages. This addition of Spanish and French III plus the already existing Latin I and II give Helias students a rich offering of classical and modern languages which is the envy of many of the smaller schools.

The teachers this year have instilled into the language students an awareness of the social aspects of their students as well as a speaking ability. They believe that a better knowledge of a peoples social customs leads not only to a quick mastery of the language, but to a harmony between peoples.

Latin students learn about the Golden Age of Rome.

French students realize you have to know where the place is to learn about it.

FINE ARTS

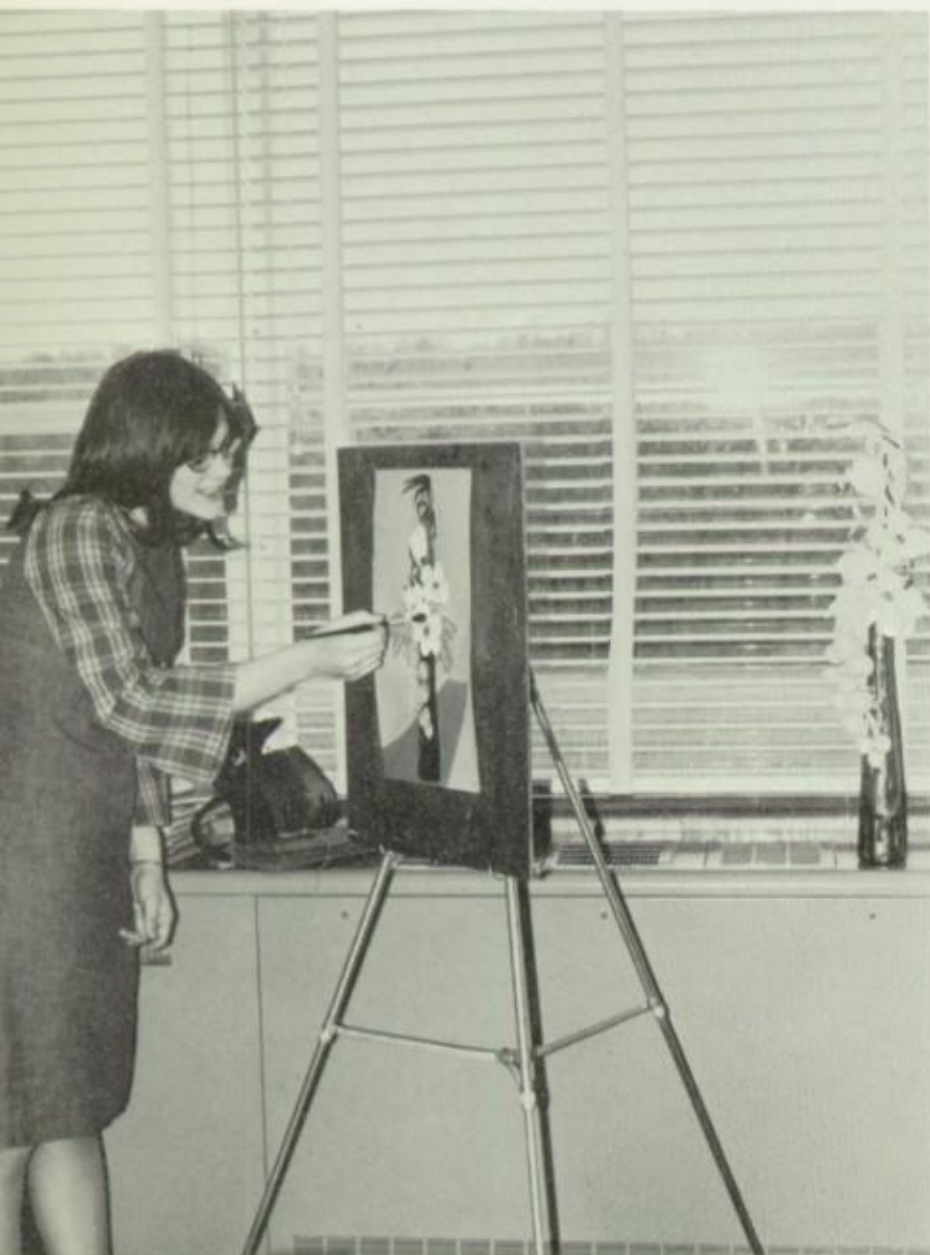

The Nicer Things In Life

Success could describe the cultural life at Helias. First the Music Department put on a triumphant Fall Concert. Then the Helias Chorale met success by singing at various clubs and banquets. The Band and Cadence Corps performed at half-time during the football season and in various parades. Finally the addition of a Stage Band provided delightful musical entertainment at home basketball games.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

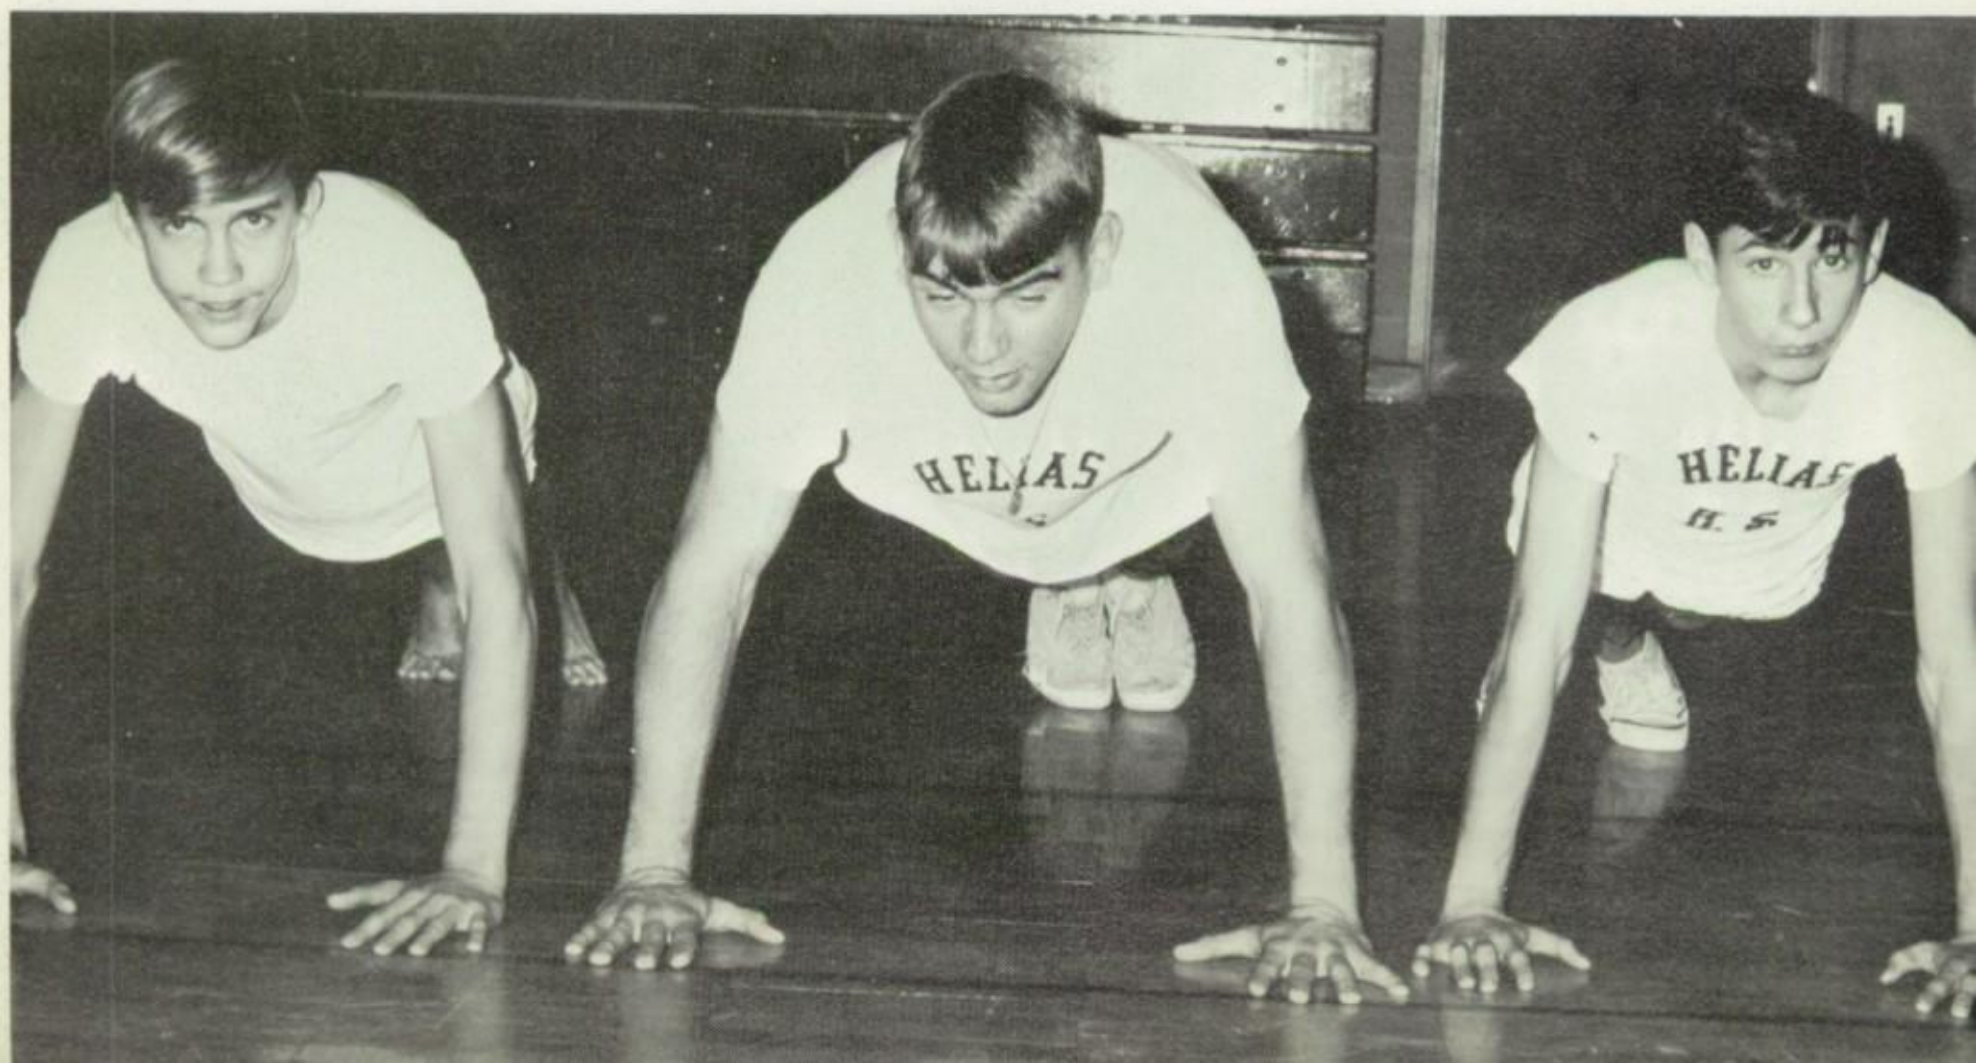

Grunts and Groans

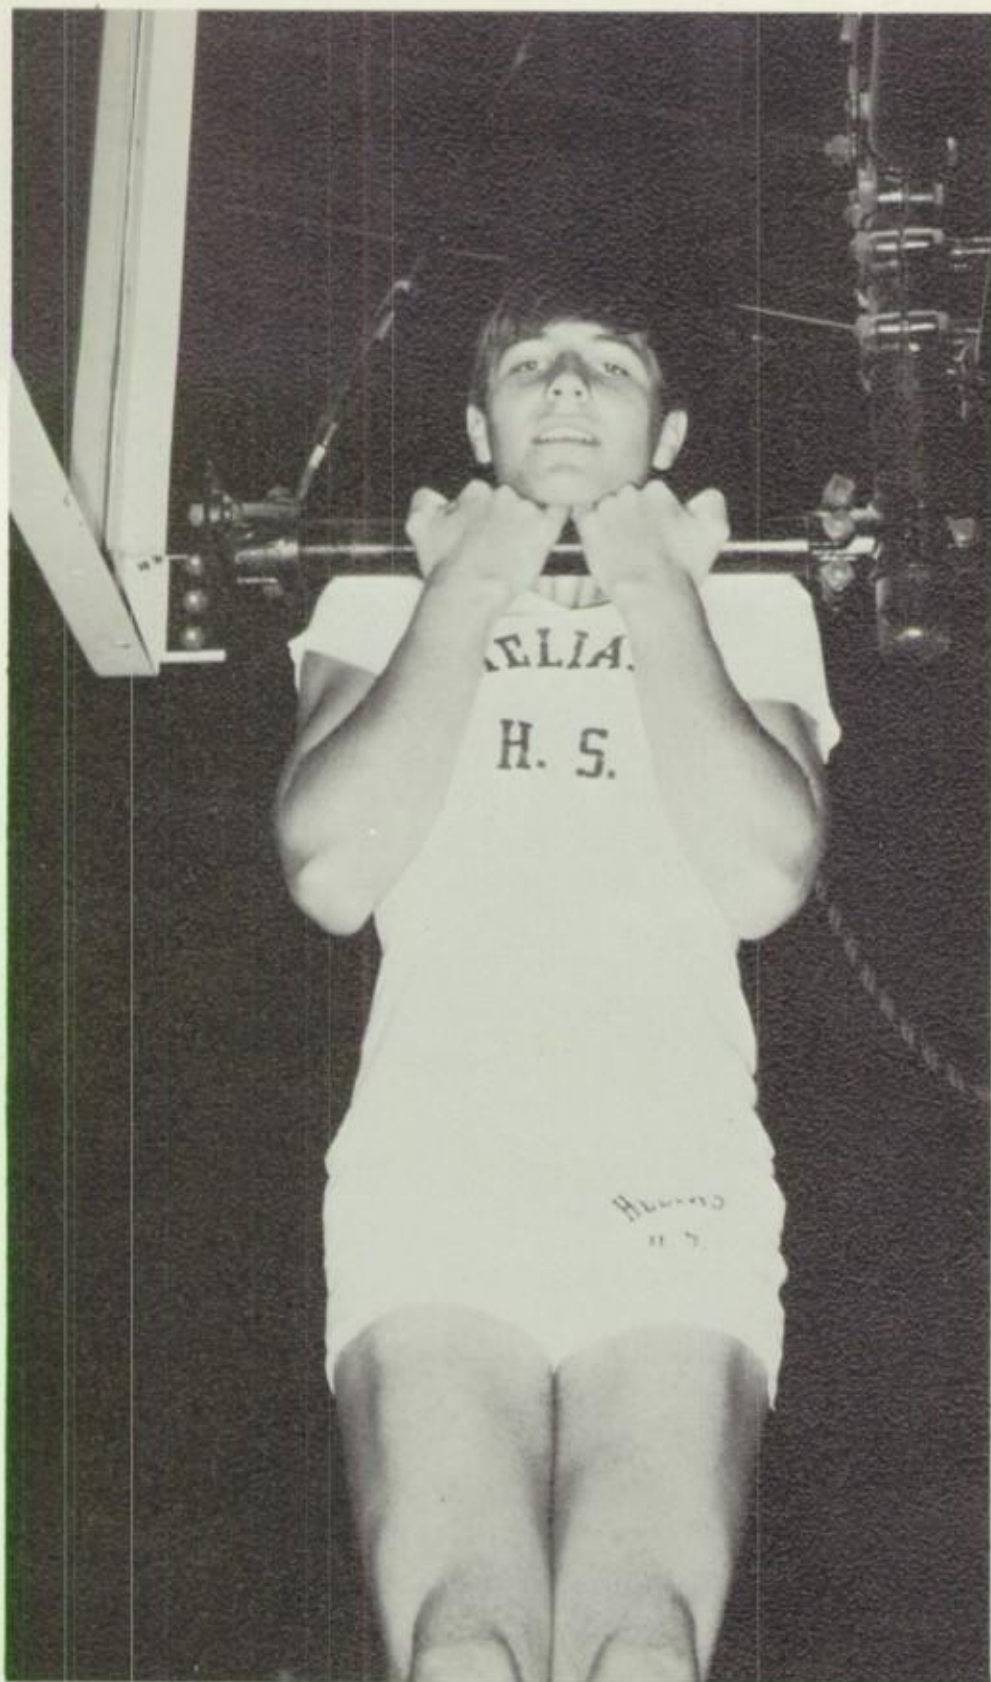

Fewer grunts and groans were heard in the Physical Education Program this year. Why? One big reason was the formation of the GAA (Girl's Athletic Association). This program was started to create a spirit of competition and to advance the physical condition of the girls. Volleyball, Basketball, Prison Ball, Track, Softball, and Table Tennis Intramurals were held at noon. The GAA sponsored a Sports Arama on March 15. The boys' P.E. Program tried to co-ordinate classes with Intramurals. Some of the Intramurals played and winners were: Touch Football (Rooms 114, 111), Volleyball (Rooms 112, 111), Soccer (Rooms 112, 109), and Basketball (Rooms 101, 111). Tumbling, Wrestling, Trampoline, Dodgeball, Track, and Softball were also offered to the boys.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Knowledge . . From Old To New

The goal set by the social studies department at Helias this year is to make history, geography, and economics, not a thing of the past but a part of the modern generation. All the teachers of this department made us realize that "No man is an island" but he is always busy discovering and making the news.

ACTIVITIES

Pepettes, Student Council, and Drama meetings; play, concert, and band rehearsals are just a few of the activities which serve to improve for the present and the future each student at Helias High School.

The art of making and keeping friends is the primary requirement for a person to be happy. In various organizational activities the formality of the classroom breaks down people meet each other face to face while working side by side toward a goal. Common interests and mutual experiences draw people together so that we may gradually become friends. The extracurricular activities of Helias provide a primary setting for this achievement.

Responsibility is an attribute that mature adulthood demands. Being a member of a club means we must learn that certain duties large and small must be performed to the best of our ability. The consequential praise or criticism then must rest fully upon our heads. Only by being given responsibilities can we learn to handle them. The organizations give us such opportunities. We must learn to make the necessary moves to accept them.

A sense of self-satisfaction is basic to our own personal self acceptance. We need to find a challenge and to achieve accomplishment. The tasks of running meetings, initiating new ideas, and carrying out projects are offered to us in our clubs. These completed jobs give us a feeling of self-satisfaction for a job well done. By finding out ways of becoming self satisfied now we can be better prepared to face the challenge of finding it later on in our lives.

Life demands that we be sociable, responsible, and satisfied human beings. Here at Helias we are learning to develop these traits so that we may learn to live with ourselves and with others.

Homecoming 1967

A time to laugh and a time to cry. The laughs were initiated by the pre-game rally, which was kicked off by the senior football game. The dust was settled by the rain of water balloons that clouded the skies. The dust rose again as the faculty again underestimated the power of the students as the tug-of-war rope snapped not once but thrice. First the cheers then the tears. The cheers rose first at the pep assembly. The assembly was highlighted by the announcement of the queen Joyce Schell and "king" Jack Bennett.

A Moment Cherished

The Helias banner heralded the start of the finest parade in years. The hard work of the students guaranteed the success of the parade. Anyone of a number of floats deserved to be judged the best.

The regal Grand March characterized the lighter but pompous attitude that permeated through this year's homecoming dance. Led by Queen Joyce and her Court — Kathy O'Hanlon, Debbie Gordon, Kathy Luebbert, and Susie Frank the dance concluded a tearful but cheerful homecoming.

Help Stamp Out Opera

"Wouldn't it be 'lovely' to have a voice like Joyce Matthews.

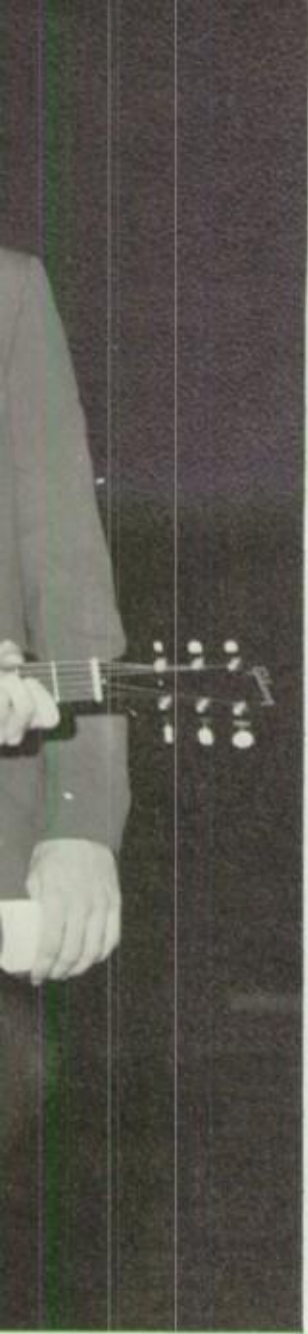

In October, the Helias Music Department took its audience on a magical musical tour from Guiseppe Verdi to Jerry Herman. The production, staged by Father John Long and directed by Sister Miriam Joyce, featured well known selections such as "Come to the Cabaret," "Surrey with the Fringe," "Mame," and numerous others. Special performances by former Helias actors brought back glorious memories of the past attractions, "Showboat," "Desert Song," and "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." The chorale and boys' choruses then added a touch of the modern to the mood of the evening. With the performance of "Hello Dolly," Helias climaxed an evening which had truly been "A grand night for singing."

John Eilers and Paul Ovaitt "Try to Remember" the words. They did remember the words and their song was one of the big hits of the evening.

The Boys' Chorus sing hello to "Dolly", Joyce Schell. This was the finale of a wonderful night of singing and dancing.

Three Little Maids "With a little bit of Soul." Mary Beth Kemna, Ann Evers, and Mary Ellen Gangwisch.

Diane Gordon adds to the splendor of the evening singing "St. Genevieve."

Concert time? Bob Markway, Kevin McCurren, Duane Buersmeyer, and Mike Walther don't let the fears and anxieties of performing before a packed auditorium bother them. They enjoyed a relaxing game of bumper pool before the opening of the Concert.

West Side Story

The curtain rises slowly revealing the panorama of excitement created by opening night. Emotions build to a crest as the clock edged slowly onward. Suddenly, at 7:15, the director of the play, Father Long, walked slowly onto the stage and startled the meager audience by announcing that due to civil disorders the mayor requested the play be rescheduled for another night, and Helias had decided to comply with the plea. Following the rather unexpected opening night performance, the play progressed steadily upward to new heights. Perhaps the best way to typify the reaction wrought by the play is to convey the sentiment expressed by a professional art critic, "WOW!"

"Tonight, tonight . . ."

"Somewhere there's a place for us . . ."

"I want to be in America . . ."

"Get those crummy P. R.'s out of here!"

"Take me away — take me far, far away."

"No one wants a fella' with a social disease!"

"We'll find a way of forgiving."

Gone With the Wind

Magnolia blossoms filled the air. The sound of music floated across the ballroom, echoing around the graceful figures gliding over the floor. The Stratford Room formed the plantation setting for "Gone with the Wind."

From the numerous Southern belles attending the dance, Sandy Wallendorf, and Janie Rackers were selected prom princesses and Jane Zemp was named as their attendant.

Insight To Helias

Student Council . . .

This year's Student Council was in motion even before school started; all incoming freshmen received a letter acquainting them with the school and its various clubs and activities. Immediately after school began, the S.C. launched "Spirit Week!" At Christmas time they organized "Carlos' Christmas" for our exchange student, Carlos Fernandez. Other Student Council projects included planting shrubs in front of the school, sending packages to Vietnam, financing the Senior retreat buses, and sponsoring several school dances and the pizza party. The purpose of the Student Council is to do the most it can for the students and no one can deny, the Helias 67-68 Student Council fulfilled its purpose.

Yearbook Staff

This was a year of drastic change for our yearbook. At a convention in Columbia, the staff learned the Mondrian system, a new style of page layout. The Mondrian style makes maximum use of the space in the yearbook.

Some members also attended another convention in Chicago. Here they saw All-American yearbooks on parade. The staff learned new and clever ideas from this nation-wide collection of superior yearbooks.

Under the leadership of the editor-in-chief, Jane Zemp and with the able help of her assistant editors: Cheryl Zeilman, Faculty and Classes; Rose Mary Sloan, Activities; Jean Kemna, Seniors and Underclassmen; Bob Schanzmeyer, Sports; and Debbie Gordon, Drafting, the staff has accomplished their goal of producing a new, different "Crusader."

The Bookies

Odds are 10 to 1 that a library assistant has come to your aid in a time of need. Our assistants can locate any book or magazine of the 5,503 in minutes. Under the guidance of Sister Charissa and leadership of President Sheila Chick much free time is spent helping the students tap the library's vast wealth of information.

There is an old adage "charity begins at home." The Helias Catholic Student Mission Crusade took this saying to heart, and responded by performing good works for the needy in Jefferson City. The students combined their voices and hearts, singing for the Old Folks Home, while also helping the disabled with Easter baskets. It seemed that whenever a cry for help rose in the corridors of Helias the C.S.M.C. responded.

Drama Club

No dramatic challenge is too much for the members of the Drama Club led by President, Mary Kay Kliegal; Vice President, Ralph Schulte; Secretary, Jean Meier; Treasurer, Teri Bartels.

All the world's a stage, with the Helias Drama Club molding the foundation and forming a sound cornerstone. They laid the first brick with this year's production of three, mystery-ridden, one-act plays. The foundation was solidified by the performances of the speech club, and the stage reached new dimensions with the musical interlude provided by the concert. The curtain was closed on the drama club's activities for this year with the outstanding production of West Side Story.

Art and Poster Club

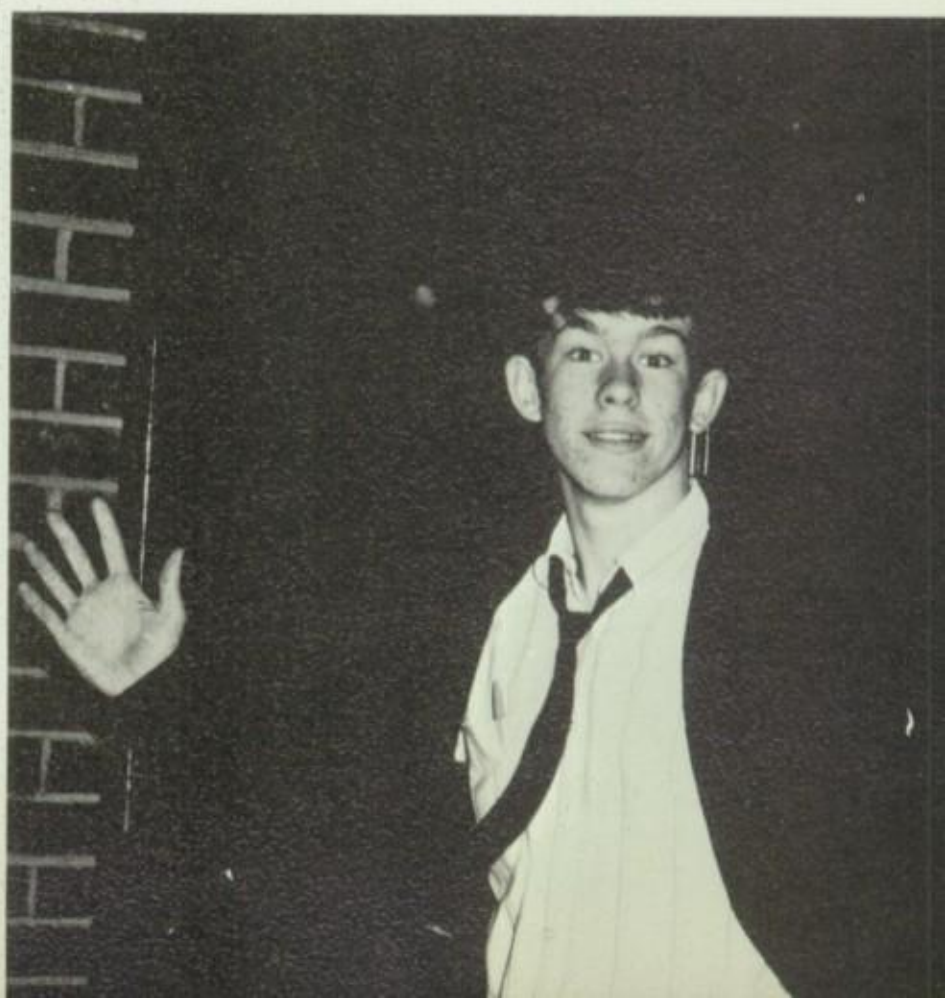

Under the direction of Sister Charissa, members of the Art and Poster Club exhibited their talent in making signs and posters for the Homecoming Parade and Spirit Week. Long hours were spent after school and on Saturdays painting inspiring pictures to magically transform the gym into a cathedral during Retreat. Through these activities the hidden talents of the members were brought to the notice of the entire student body.

Sally Bassman and Jim Hempe

Our band leader, Mr. Ray Nilges.

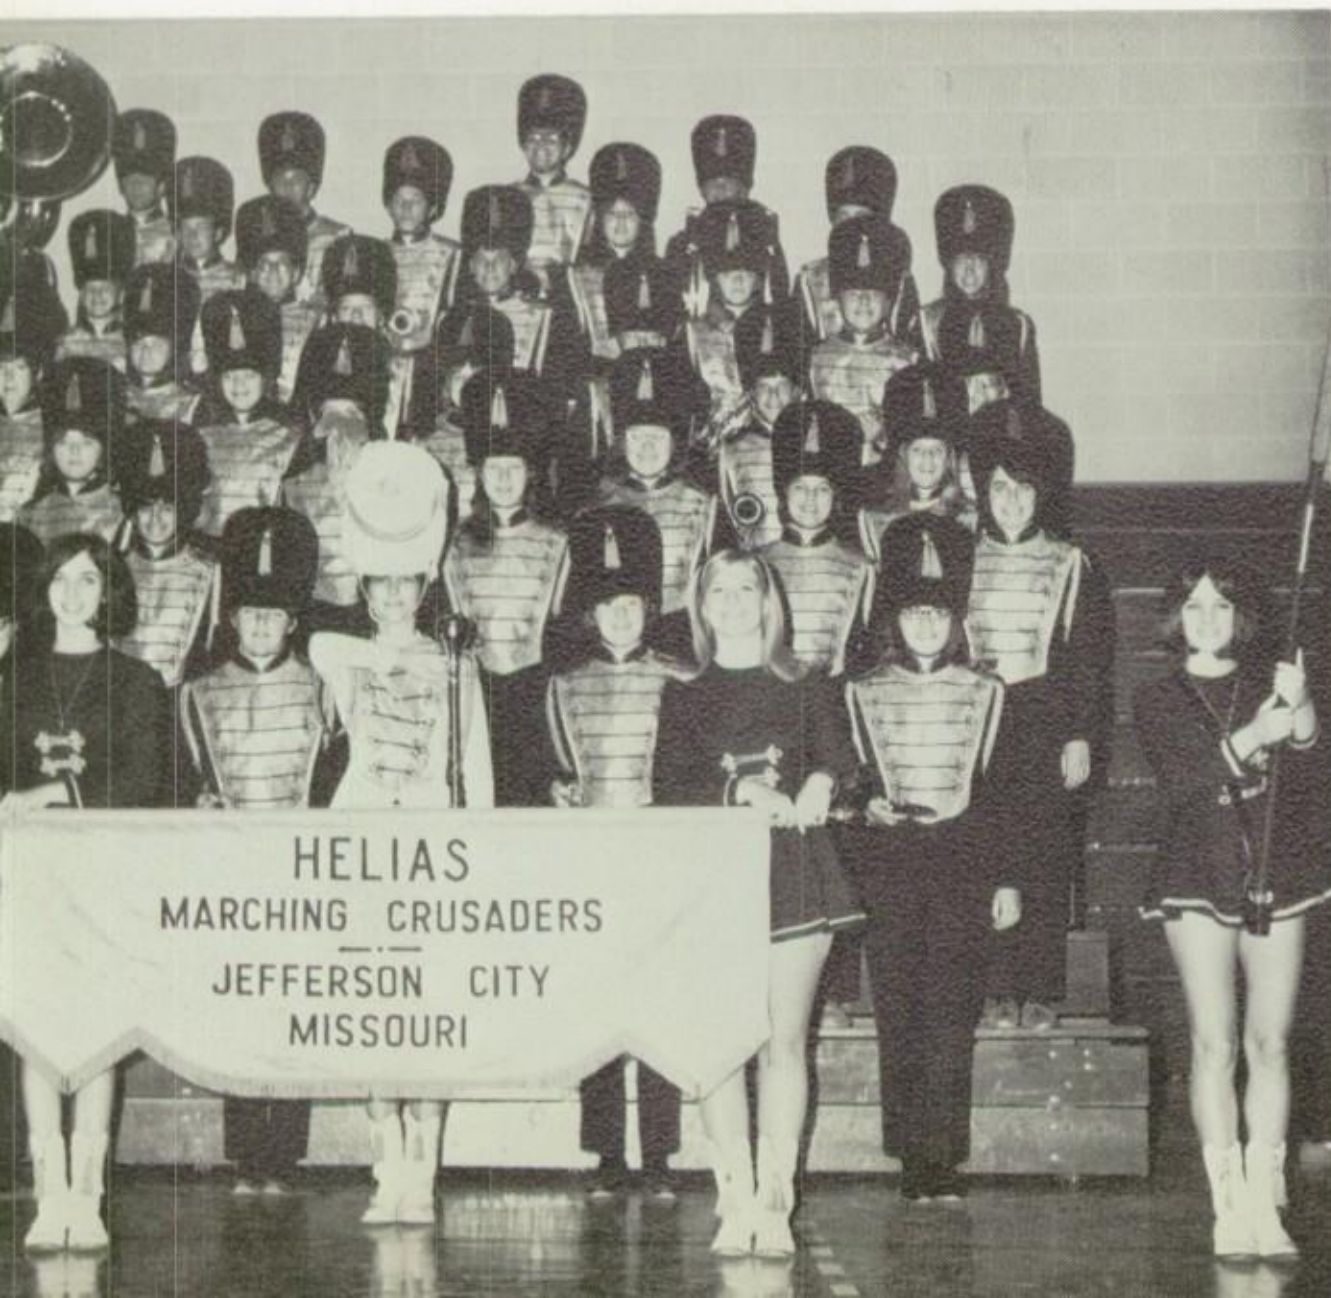

This year the Helias Marching Band came striding on the football field with classy new uniforms. Under the direction of Mr. Nilges, the band put on a spectacular performance. Not only does the band perform at games but also provides music for our school assemblies. The creation of the stage band was a great asset that really peeps up the crowd at the basketball games. The band seems to be growing not only in members but in talent.

Drum And Bugle Corps

15 drummers drumming and 21 buglers bugling.

Helias' high-stepping, eye-popping, quick-moving Drum and Bugle Corps proudly performed its way through another thrilling year. Their precision and skill didn't just happen though; as the sun was slowly rising, so rose the drummers and buglers to another day of drilling. Unfailing attendance and support of the Corps did wonders as our sports fans will unquestionably agree.

The Corps wearily and regretfully packed its instruments after unmatched performances at Lincoln University, Homecoming, basketball and football games and the Christmas parade.

Majorettes

Halftime! The tension of the crowd starts to settle for it's 69-68, as the teams leave the floor. Suddenly the drums sound and on to the floor parade the majorettes, with sparkling batons twirling above their heads. The majorettes start the rise of excitement as they perform various skills to the tune of the stage band. This rise of excitement frames the crowds for the clash between the two teams when the second half starts. The girls have marched in the Lincoln University, Linn, Thanksgiving, and Christmas parades, not to forget our own Helias homecoming. The majorettes are: Sheila Chick, Jean Kramp, Jo Eveler, Janis Prenger, Debbie Parris, and Linda Gaffke.

Cheerleaders

"Practice makes perfect." With this motto in mind, the cheerleaders of Helias went to work. The varsity cheerleaders took all honors at camp this past summer. They carted off four firsts and one third in nightly competition. The Junior Varsity also put in many long hours of practice for the basketball season. New, smart, and Practical uniforms accented the success of both squads. Spirit was given an added boost by the enthusiastic antics of the newly-organized boy cheerleaders. Our bouncing mascots, Melanie Kolb and Janet Borgmeyer, added a special spark to each cheer. It was a peppy, high-flying year for the Helias Booster Banner.

A Boy's Eye View of the Pepettes

The sound fades into an echo, to rise again in another throbbing yell. A section of the stands rise in unison, chanting a cheer that heralds the end of another athletic encounter. The pepettes have given moral support to another Helias team. The pepettes are more than just a pep squad, though, they are the Helias version of the rockettes and the marine corps combined. They combined the best of both, with the precision of the rockettes as shown in the homecoming parade and the spirit of the marines as typified by pepette week.

Happiness is having a big "H" on your sweater.

It's Pepette Week

Extra, Extra!! It's Pepette Week! And what an "Extra" it was! The activities of the week began on Thursday with the annual card party. The following day saw the school in an uproar with "Hush Day" and our "Mr. Irresistible" election. Mary Rieke will never forget our game with Boonville because she was announced the 1968 Pom Pom Princess. Next came "Meet the Team Day" during which all the members of the basketball team were plagued for their autographs by hundreds of "idolizing" Pepettes. Tuesday and Wednesday emphasized school spirit with tags being presented to all spirited students. The week-long round of events ended with our annual Pepette Dance with a beautiful Valentine's theme, "Our Heart's Are Young and Gay."

Pepettes and dates danced to the magical theme of "Our Hearts are Young and Gay."

Sheila Chick receives a box of "Cheer Mix" for being the most perservering autograph seeker.

Chorale

The Helias Chorale warming up

Officers of the Chorale include: Pres. Mary Rieke, V. Pres. Elaine Strobe, Sec. Cecilia Schulte, Gown Chairman Mary Jo Williams, Music Chairmen Mary Beth Weber and Joyce Schell

Where have all the songs gone? Gone to memories everyone. The melodious sounds of the Chorale still echoes in the remembrances of the audience at the Council of Clubs. The high note for the year, though rose from their singing at the Helias Concert.

Jack Bennett addresses the audience at the installation of the new members of the National Honor Society.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society is a nationwide organization whose purpose is to give recognition to the students who fulfill its ideals of Scholarship, Leadership, Character and Service. The student's admittance is left as a decision of the high school faculty. This year members of the honor society attended the Missouri Convention at McClure High School in Florissant, Mo. Here they met students throughout the state during informal discussions on current issues.

On April 28, 1968 Pres. Mary Rieke presided over a formal meeting in which the newly elected Junior members were installed.

Hodgepodge

ATHLETICS

Practices after school, throwing passes, making a block, sinking a ball, and jumping a hurdle fill the lives of the athletes at Helias. While even spectators are thrilled by the games and the feats of the players, no one is affected more by team sports than the participants. We spend hours upon hours in drills and practices to perfect ourselves for the moment in which we are tested.

Perhaps the foremost thing we learn in sports is self-discipline. Our bodies are trained into reflex muscles to move in a split second. Our minds are trained to think as one, as a team and then to perform as a team. Discipline demands hard work to become the best team Helias has ever known.

Sometimes we may be the best team or the best player, but more important than that is learning what is best for the team comes first in our lives. Team spirit is an intangible that lies in the hearts and minds of the squad. It keeps us going when the going gets tough. It enables us to try one more time to turn failure into success.

Because of our labors in athletics, we develop pride in ourselves, our school, and in our team. From this pride stems the motivation for self-improvement because we are the representatives of our high school. People throughout the state of Missouri judge a portion of Helias on the basis of our performance. We strive to represent her in the best possible ways.

Active participation in athletics must result in our growth. That is why our school has established them to benefit us to teach us to have self-discipline, a team spirit, and pride. We are learning to be men.

36" From An Undefeated Season

All-District Co-Captain Dale Amick

The 1967 edition of the Helias Crusaders lived up to the expectations of their many, enthusiastic fans.

Led by the broken field running of senior halfback, Dale Amick, and Robbie McCurren, the hard nosed rushing of junior fullback Ron Kaiser, and the clutch passing of Junior quarterback Gary Schnieders; the Crusaders rolled past nine of ten opponents. They were defeated only once by a freak 83 yard TD pass, by Bishop Meige, in the homecoming encounter.

Perhaps the most important factor which enabled the Crusaders, coached by Ray Hentges, to compile one of the finest records in many seasons was the stubborn defense led by rugged seniors and juniors: Mark Saucier, Dennis Markway, Roger Kempker, and Juniors Roger Kramer and Tom Keeken. They held all opponents to an average of 1223 yards of total defense. This was one of the best performances in Mid-Missouri.

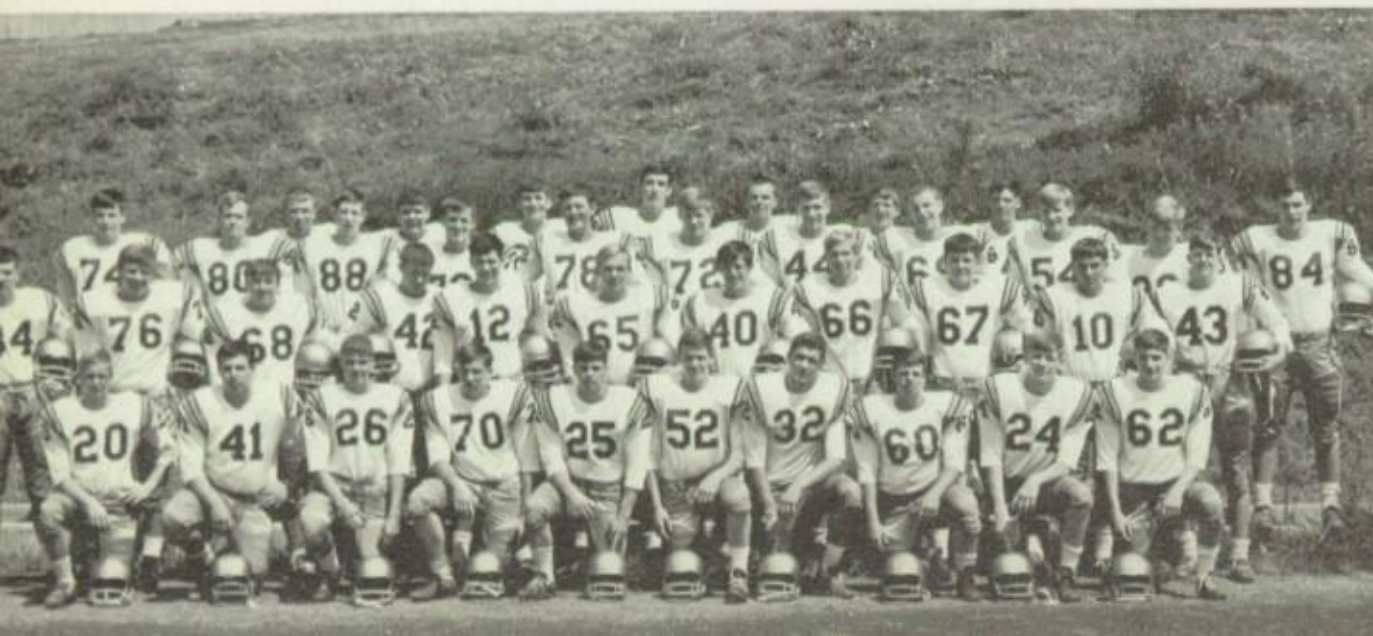

Seniors Mike Chick, Larry Kolb, and Charlie Rackers also turned in notable performances before being injured in the season.

The results of the many months of sweat and pain were recognized by sports-writers throughout the State, in choosing seven Helias performers to the All District squad. Two of these were named to the 1967 Missouri All State team. These included All State defensive end, Mark Saucier; All State tackle, Dennis Markway; All District backs Dale Amick, Robbie McCurren, and Gary Schnieders; and linemen; Roger Kempker, Roger Kramer, and Eric Thompson.

Basketball '67-'68

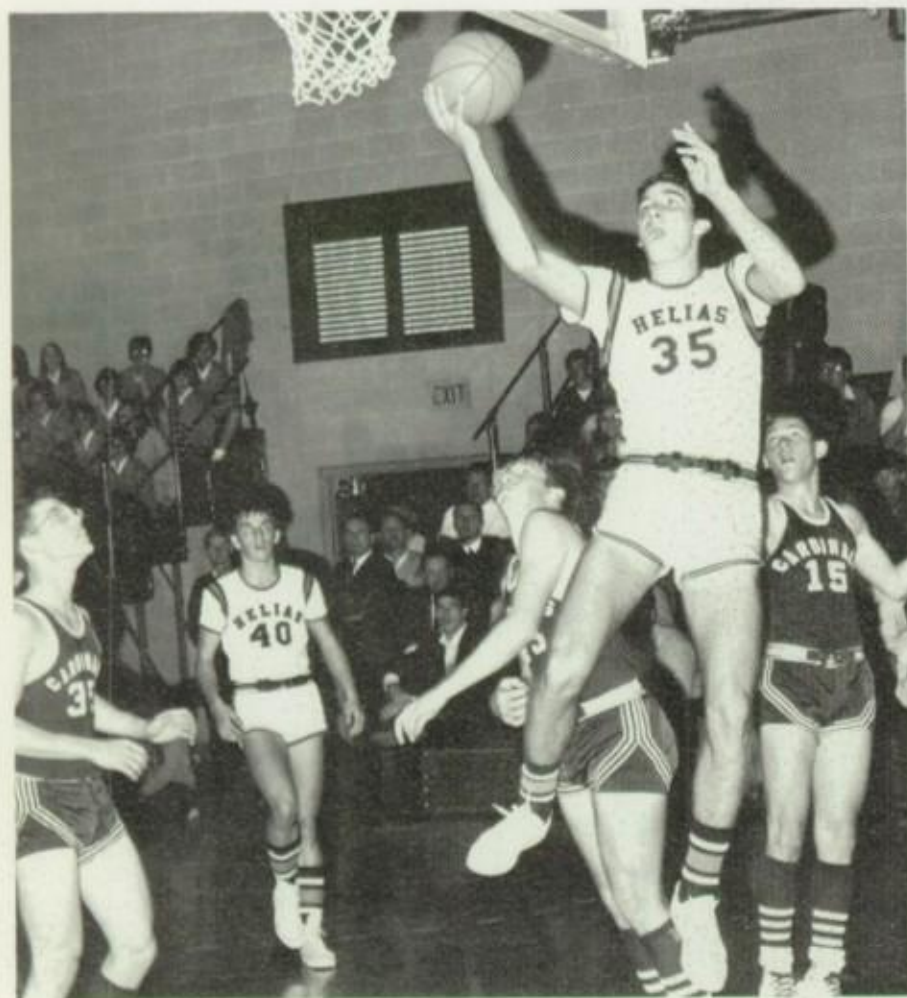

Under the guidance of Coach Lee Howser, '67-'68 basketball Crusaders compiled their finest season in three years. The Crusaders were sparked by the fine all-around play of All-State junior, Eric Thompson; and All-District senior, John Eilers. The final season record was improved from a dismal 6-19 record in '66-'67, to a respectable 12-10 campaign this past year.

This record, however, does not reflect the type of basketball exhibited by the Crusaders on many occasions throughout the season. Nearly every loss can be attributed to a poor quarter in which the Crusaders couldn't get going.

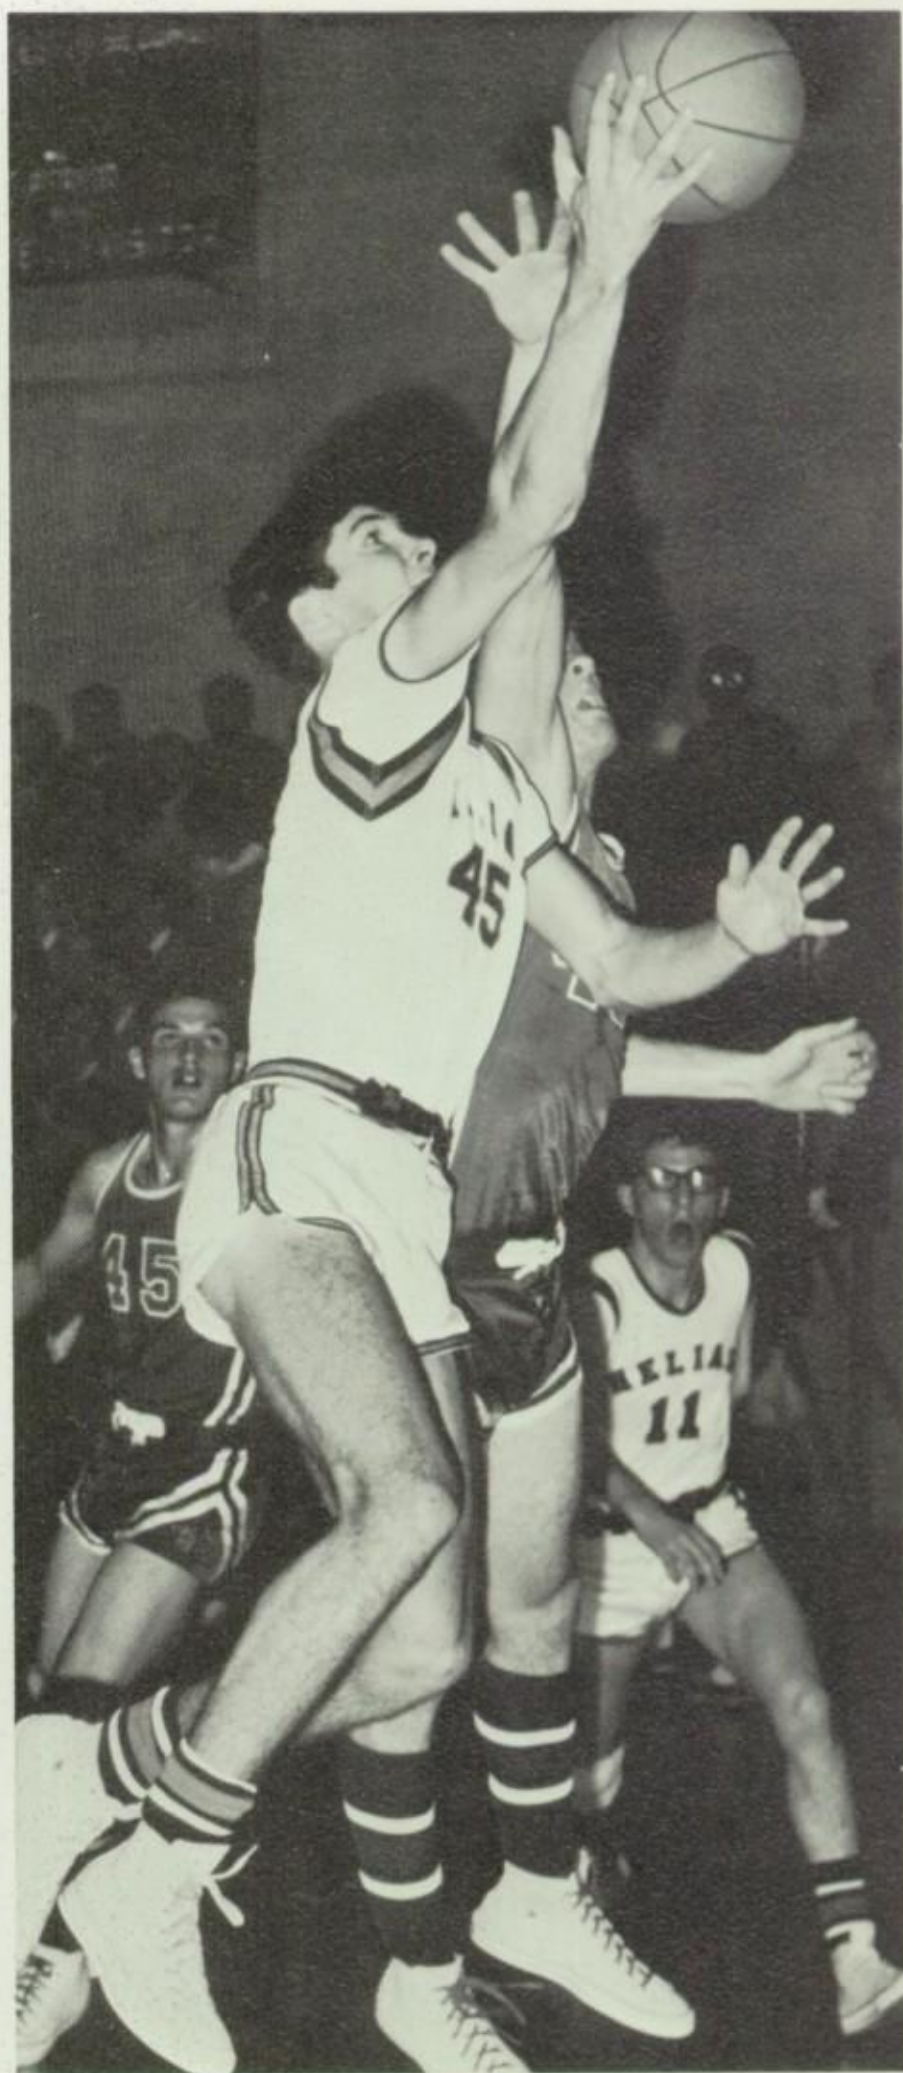

Seniors John Eilers, team captain; Jerry Hiesberger; Stan Ochser; Joe Borsh; and Dale Amick played some fine basketball for the Crusaders. Juniors Mike Healey, Gary Schnieders, and Eric Thompson also turned in notable performances.

Thompson led the Crusaders in scoring with 490 points, for a 22.3 average per game. He was followed by John Eilers with 282 points, for a 13.7 average per game. Thompson also grabbed 308 rebounds in the 22 games, snapping the school records for most rebounds in a single game and most caroms in a single season.

Although 12-10 is a mediocre season, the Helias fans can be proud of the Crusaders for the great effort and improvement throughout the season.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Losing, winning, watching, and learning are all parts of the world of an underclassman. A world sometimes simple many times complex filled with fun, hopes, and problems. We don't always understand this world, but somehow we crawl from our first freshman class to the day we receive our junior report cards and become—seniors.

The fun can be a million and one things: football games, parades, a first date, laughing at friends, or starring in a play. Many times the funniest things were the most embarrassing ones a year ago. Whatever the cause parts of every day seem to be spent in fun.

Underclassmen possess one great virtue and that is hope. We hope: to pass, to win an election, or to beat Hickman. Things cannot get worse. They must get better. Life is continually renewed because we have high hopes.

Problems Problems Problems They too are in our world. The carefree days of childhood are past and the problems of adolescence are here. We are flunking math, our friends are enemies, and the car is wrecked. These are only a few of the worries which beset us. Sometimes the troubles loom so large we think we shall just give up—sometimes we do. We may solve one difficulty only to meet another.

This is our world. We learn to love it. Just as we are learning to grow up and to face the fun, hopes, and problems of the world outside of Helias.

SENIORS

Yes, we've made it. The long awaited senior year has come and gone. We are the graduating class of 1968 of Helias. Helias has been our home away from home for four exciting and busy years. Classmates have become acquaintances, friends, and even soulmates. We have not come alone through the years; the spirit of '68 has been our inspiration. There is no denying that this class has had something special — an enthusiasm to work and to play together. We have produced a person to fill every need — scholar, athlete, beauty, leader, singer, and clown.

Seven-hundred and twenty school days filled with a litany of things — assignments, assemblies, exams, essays, and fun. Countless additional hours spent in extracurricular activities — football games, prom work parties, float buildings, picnics, pep rallies, and parades. Times never to be forgotten or to be shared again. The class of 1968 has come and gone.

We can look at our freshman picture and find the reason behind this endless effort to learn and to experience more each year. We've changed. We have grown up.

What is next? That's up to each of us individually. Helias is through. The class of 1968 is only a memory now. May we meet again in 1973!

Carlos Fernandez

Carlos Fernandez was the foreign exchange student at Helias this year. Coming to us from Potosi, Bolivia in South America, Carlos stayed with the Schanzmeyer family. He enlightened the students with his Latin ideas and customs. Carlos' talks to the students and just casual conversations gave the students a new look at another culture.

Graduation

For the 165 graduates of the class of 1968, Graduation was a mountain top, a glorious moment to be cherished, untarnished by past regrets or concerns for the future. How unbelievably fast the high school days went by; for suddenly, a casually tossed tassel ended the joyous, yet sad, culmination of four great years.

Through the Years

What's Ahead?

The academic year of 1968 of Helias High School has come to a close. However, this is not the time to look back and wish for the past. It is, instead, the time to look ahead and plan for the future either at or away from Helias.

We have tried to show how Helias enables us to look around a bend not in a river but in life and see a sight worth reaching. How she teaches us when to ride the current and when to fight the current.

Perhaps, it is time that we should stand beside a river, and wonder where and how we are going down the stream of life.

On this the final page of the Crusader the year-book staff would like to express their thanks to our moderators Sr. John Leonard and Sr. Miriam Robert for their help and guidance. We also owe a debt of gratitude to Br. James for his perseverance and patience as our professional photographer.

The End.
